"Nasal Volces, Catarrh and Palso Teeth." A prominent English woman says the American women all have high, shrill nasal voices and faise teeth.

Americans don't like the constant twitting they get about this nasal twang, and yet it is a fact caused by our dry stimulat-ing atmosphere, and the universal presence of catarrhal difficulties.

But why should so many of our women have false teeth !

Both conditions are unnatural. Catarrhal troubles everywhere prevail and end in cough and consumption, which are promoted by mal nutriton induced by deranged stomach action. The condition is a modern one, one unknown to our an-cestors who prevented the catarrh, cold, cough and consumption by abundant and regular use of what is now known as Warner's Log Cabin cough and consump-tion remedy and Log Cabin sarsaparilla, two old fashiened standard remedies handed down from our ancesters, and now exclusively put forth under the strongest guarantees of purity and efficacy by the world famed makers of Warner's safe cure. These two remedies plentifully used as the fall and .winter seasons advance, together with an occasional use of Warner's Log rose cream, to strengthen and protect the masal membranes, give a positive ussurance of freedom, both from catarrh and those dreadful and if neglected, inevitable consequences, pneumonia, lung troubles and consumption, which so generally and fatally prevail among our people. Comrade Ed Fisher, of Salem, Henry Co., Iowa, served four years in the late war and contracted a disease called consumption by the doctors. He had frequent hemourhages. After using Warner's Log Cabin cough and consumption remedy, he says under date of Jan. 19th, 1888: "I do not bleed at the lungs any more, my cough does not bother me, and I do not have any more smothering spells." Warner's Log Cabin rose cream cured his wife of catarrh and she is "sound and well." Of course we do not like to have our women called nose talkers and false teeth owners, but these conditions can be readily overcome in the manner indicated. Man's honor wears armor, and carries a mace-woman's honor has only soft breezes and perfumes.

Moxie Makesa Big Excitement in Malden, A twelve-year old daughter of John Nich-olson, 735 Main street, Malden, has been as helpless as a baby for a long time. Her father finally gave up his doctors, and gave her this liquid serve food, "Moxie." Five bottles so fed the serves of her paralyzed limbs to strength, she is now a nice, romp-ing, healthy girl. The people of Malden are much excited over it, and consider it the most wonderful thing they ever saw.

YELLOW JACK

And Its Authorie Microbe Progent-

Dr. Paul Gibler, who was deputed by the French Government to investigate the whole question of yellow fever, has just delivered a lecture before the Academy of Science in Havana, embodying the results at which he has at present arrived. Before leaving Paris he felt so convinced of the truth of Dr. Freire's views that he got himself inoculated with some of the cultures which that distinguished Brazillan physician had brought. The first insertion-made with a lanseit with great care-was followed by no result whatever. A week later some of the attenuated virus was injected subsutaneously, and this produced such violent effects that Dr. Gibier declares nothing in the world would induce him to submit to a repetition of it. Since his arrival in Cuba, he has made postmortem examinations of a number of persons who have died of yellow fever, some of the examinations taking place only two hours after death, and one of them within fiteen minutes from the moment life bocame extinct. The exsmination of the blood taken from the heart in these cases, as well as the inspection of the urine, the bile, the pericaralal fluid the liver, the spleen, and the mesenteric glands, convinced him that none of these organs contain any microbe. He, however, discovered in the black matter always found in the intestimes a bacillus presenting many points of re-semblance to the so-called comma bacilli of cholera, being sometimes curved, and occurring in some cultures in a spiral form, pos-sessing also the property of liquefying gelatine. This bac lius, when cultivated in pep-ton z-d broth, blackened the sides of the tubes; and when a few drops of the culture were injected into the intestine of guinea pigs it sometimes proved fatal, the intestinal contents then showing a great resemblance to those found in yellow f ver patience. In dogs, the injection of a few drops into the small letestine rapidly produced violent effects-vomiting, diaraho, and, the night following, pyrexia Cultures of this bacillus had a smell resembling that of the black vomit. A moist heat of 60° C. destroyed the bacillus in a few minutes; desiccation also proved fatal to it in less than twenty-four hours. This last observation led Dr. Gibier to suggest that if this bacillus was really the cause of yellow fever the immunity of inland districts might thus be explained, the comparative dryness of the air destroying the virus. It developed extremely well in sea water charged with organic matter; living, too, for a long time side by side with the ordinary microbes of outrefaction, so long at least as the medium did not become acid, for even a very slight degree of acidity destroyed the orgadism in a few hours. In confirmation of observations made at the laboratory, Dr. Gib In confirmation er mentions that he has several times had an opportunity of demonstrating the same cumstance in the dead house, the contents the intestines, when they have become acid some hours after death, cessing to show the presence of the bacilius. Since writing on this subject previously Dr. Gibier has had appartunities of examining the bodies of foreign sailors who have died in the civil hospital of Havana, and he has been able lemonstrate the presence of the bacillus in those who have suffered from yellow fever, and its absence in those who had died from other diseases. His opnion is that yellow fever is due to the derelopment of the mierobe in the intestine, the affection being therefore essentially a local one. - New York

THE MAGNITUDE OF INDIA.

Ancient Nations, Great Cities, and an Enormous Population. For eighty years at least, says the Fortightly Review, writers have endeavored to bring home to Englishmen the vastness of because it matched her nose so perfectly ludia, but, so far as can be perceived, they have falled. The Belton reads what they say, Hushington to the learns up the r figures, and understands their descriptions, but falls, for all his labor, to reslize what is-a continent as large as Europe, west of the Vistula, and with 30,000,000 more copie, fuller of ancient nations, of great cities, of varities of civilization, of arm'es nobilities, priesthoods, organ zations for every conceivable purpose from the spreading of great rebellion down to systematic murder. There are twice as many Bengalese as there are Frenchmen, the Hindostanees, properly so ca led, outnumbered the whites in the United My cheeks were once so smooth and States; the Mahrattas would fill Spain the ruddy! States; the Mahrattas would fill Spain, the people of the Punjab with Scinde are double the population of Turkey, and I have named but four of the more silent divisions.

Everything is on the same bewildering scale. The fighting people of India, whose males are as big as ourselves, as brave as ourselves, and more regardless of death than ourselves, number at least 120,000,000, equal to Gibbons' calculation of the population of the Roman empire. There are 4 0,000 trained the Roman empire. There are 4.0,000 trained brown soldiers in native service, of whom we hear perhaps once in ten years, and at least 2,000,000 men who think their proper profession is arms, who would live by arms if they could, and of whom we in England never hear a word. If the Prussian conscription were applied in India we could, without counting reserves or landwehr, or any force not supmoned in time of years. or any force not summoned in time of peace, have 2,500,010 soldiers actually in barracks, with 700,000 recruits coming up every rear—a force with which not only Asia, but the world, might be subdued. There are tens of millions of prosperous peasants whose hoard-ings make India the grand absorbent of the precious metals; tens of millions of peasants beside whose poverty fellans, or Sicilians, or Conneught men are rich; millions of artisans, ranging from the men who build palaces to the men who, nearly naked and almost with-the men who, nearly naked and almost without tools, do the humblest work of the potter.

Every occupation which exists in Europe also exists in India. The industry of the vast continent never ceases, for India, with all her teeming multitudes, with a population in places packed beyond European precedent, interests nothing although to see of the see imports nothing either to eat or drink, and, but for the Europeans, would import nothing whatever. She is sufficient to herself for everything save silver. Amid these varied masses, these 251,000,000 whose mere descriptions. tions would fill volumes, the tide of life flows as vigorously as in Europe. There is as much con ention, as much ambition, as much rime, as much variety of careers, hopes, fears, and batreds. It is still possible to a moneyless Indian to become view of advantate older than batters. Indian to become v zier of a dynasty older than history, or finance minister of a new prince whose personal fortune in bard cash is double that of the late Emp-rer William, or abbot of a monastery reher than Glastonbury ever was, owner of an estate that covers a county, head of a firm whose transactions may vie with those of the Barings and Beichroders. facts are decidedly interesting. The ouse, says the New York Graph or pevents the fact that deaf and dumb persons can love just the same as those who can hear and talk. All the parties in the suit are unfortunatity afflicted as above stated...

William Schreiber, of Frogtown. Pittston, has a son, Frank, that is both deaf and dumb, and is about twenty a x years of age. Some time last March Frank passed through Miss Amelia has seen about twenty-five sum- I oland. mera. She is a nice looking young lady. Frank made love to the fair one and found that she was deaf. She returned his love longer, and that he wan ed the ceremony to take piace as soon as possible.

The courtship was a peculiar one, owing to the predicament they were both in, he being unable to hear ber talk, while she was unable to bear. The courting was done, nevertheless, and the day was set for the wedding.

In the meanwhile he showered gifts upon her in the shape of two rings, a silk dress and other articles, besides turning over to her his earnings. As the great day drew near some one circuiated a bad rumor about her. He went stra ghtway to Amelia and told her what he had heard. The news was received by her with great surprise and she denied it with considerable emphasis. It angered her to such an extent that she jilled him then and there. He believed the adage, "True love never runs smooth," adage, "True love never runs smooth," shu thought that matters would be fixed up in a day or so. She declined to fix up the matter, however, and Schreiber's surprise can better be imagined than described when he reached his fair one's domice and beheld a deaf and dumb tailor named Flaning filling the posi-

He there-fore asked to have returned the two rings, the silk dress, the money and other articles that he had presented to her. This she also refused to do.

Then he went to Squire Fleisher and brought suit against Amelia upon the charge of fraudulently obtaining from him forty-five dollers with the intent to cheat and defraud him out of the same. The hearing took place a few days ago, when the above facts were brought to light. The interested parties are well known and respected by all.

What They Were Thinking Of.

They had been talking for a long time says Texas Siftings, Arabella's chair was tired and just for a change she sat upon John's lap. There was a good deal of silence for a few minutes.

"What are you thinking of, John dear?" asked Arabella. "Just what you are, sweet," replied John

"Ob, you herrid, horrid man!" exclaimed the sweet one, springing to her feet; "if I'd have known that you were thinking of kissing I wouldn't have set there one minute. And you won't catch me sitting there again, sir, you may depend."
